Greg founded New Zealand Financial Planning which eventually became a nation-wide company. In 2014 Greg decided to exit NZFP to concentrate on his Auckland-based practice and created Financial Planning New Zealand Ltd (FPNZ), which was rebranded in 2018 as OnePlan for Retirement.

He was also an Auckland City Councillor, representing the inner-city Western Bays Ward, and was Chairman of the Auckland City Arts, Culture and Recreation Committee prior to the amalgamation of the Auckland City Council. He served on and was Finance spokesperson for the Waitemata Local Board (2010-2016), and is a committee member of the West End Bowling Club.

After many years in the financial planning industry, Greg still enjoys helping people to help themselves and is a firm believer in New Zealanders' need to plan to ensure their future financial wellbeing. Greg believes he can provide this security to his clients by assisting them to adopt a sane, sound, sensible approach to the creation and protection of wealth.
